

BRADLEY STOUGHTON AWARD FOR YOUNG TEACHERS

I. DEFINITION AND HISTORY

The Bradley Stoughton Award was established in 1952. It recognizes and fosters excellence in the teaching of materials science, materials engineering, design, and processing to encourage young teachers in this field.

Bradley Stoughton (1873-1959) was President of ASM in 1942. His distinguished career included teaching and administrative positions at MIT, Columbia University and Lehigh University, where he served as Head of the Department of Metallurgy and Dean of Engineering for 35 years. In addition, he was a consulting metallurgist for 21 years.

Dr. Stoughton gave his time without stint to his students, guiding and inspiring them to many outstanding metallurgical achievements. His intimate knowledge of theoretical and practical problems in the manufacture of steel led him to an international reputation in this field.

II. RULES

- A. ASM International membership is mandatory at the time of nomination for this award.
- B. Candidates for the award may be proposed by an alumni or faculty group, or any ASM member except a member of the Award Selection Committee.
- C. Candidates must be 35 years of age or younger by 15 May of the year in which the award is made.
- D. Candidates must be persons who have a sound knowledge of, and outstanding enthusiasm for, the teaching of materials science and materials engineering, and design and processing, and must have demonstrated the ability to impart that knowledge and enthusiasm to students.
- E. The award is open to any teacher of materials science, materials engineering, design, processing and related fields.
- F. The Selection Committee will review only nominations submitted on the proper form.
- G. Recommendations must be submitted to ASM Headquarters not later than 1 March of the year prior to that in which the award is to be presented.
- H. Nominations shall be valid for one year, but may be resubmitted in subsequent years, providing the candidate is still eligible. (Nominations are destroyed to preclude prior prejudice.)
